Reviews

An incredibly great book with perfect and lucid answers. Better then never, though i am quite late in start reading this one. You will not sense monotony at whenever you want of the time (that's what catalogues are for relating to if you question me).

Gradus ad Parnassum was invented by a Jesuit, concertations, declamations, and the acting of Latin plays. In the three lower classes half-an-hour a day had been devoted to Greek, in the two upper this time was doubled. If we may judge by the list of Greek authors which were supposed to be read, considerable proficiency must have been attained. It comprises Demosthenes, Plato, Thucydides, Homer, Hesiod, Pindar, and others of the same kind, Gregory of Nazianzen, Basil, Chrysostom, writings of Lucian, Plutarch, Herodian, Sophocles, and Euripides. But we know that this imposing parade meant but little, and that but little energy and vigour were really put into this study. All knowledge which was not language or style was classed; by the Jesuits under the name of erudition, and to this were to be devoted extraneous hours, but no portion of the regular curriculum. These subjects might properly be learned on whole holidays, or got up by students as preparation for examinations. Among the subjects of erudition were included arithmetic, history, geography, and the elements of algebra and geometry. Let us examine the daily work of a Jesuit school. The bell sounds at half-past six, and the scholars gradually assemble. At seven all attend mass, and at half-past seven the work of the day begins. After a short prayer, the master mounts his desk, and the boys say their lessons by heart to the dtcurions, while the master collects and corrects the exercises, and...
