D., Glasgow; Commandant Rene De Gys, Annamite Army, and the Honourable Richard Assheton Smith, in the Golden Land of Indo-China It is so much the custom nowadays for an author who has achieved your good will with a particular type of tale to continue in the same vein until either your patience or his own fertility be exhausted, that I - having been fortunate enough to please you with my Peter Jameson - feel a little diffident in following up that romance of everyday life with what I can only describe as an adventure story. For such - without any pretence - is the present volume. But, apart from this perfectly natural diffidence, I make no apologies for the book. The idea of it first came to me many years ago, on a stifling night in Bangkok, Siam, as I lay sleepless under my muslin curtains, listening to the fierce bass of the never-still mosquitoes, the keen tremolo - tic-call, tic-call, tic-call - of the motionless lizards on walls and ceiling. We had spent the evening - my Siamese friends and I - at the theatre, a great building of green wood, where European uniforms blazed in the front rows of stalls, and behind - naked to brown waist - silent, slitty-eyed women with short hair, blackened teeth, and curled-back fingertips, sat nonchalantly suckling their doll-like babies. A strange playhouse, and a strange play! At this lapse of time I recollect the audience better than the performers. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare...
